Cape sfinite cocupy public attention. Sir S. Northcote, on the second day of the campaign in Scotland, declared that in South Africa the degradation imposed on England was such as no British Minister over before submitted to. The Pall Mail Genetic of Saturday takes a gloomy view of the situation in South Africa, and asks if the Cape Colony as to be governed on Dutch principles, and the Cape Ministry to depend for its exustance on the Datch vota. How long will South Africa remain English? It may or may not be too strong to say that logically the sequel of the resignation of Mackenzie is the limitation of British sovereignty in South Africa to a cooling station at Table Bay.

Lord Stalley yesterday, addressing an influential meeting in London on the subject of the Congo, said amid general applause that he was assured that an International African Association was the best scheme for opening up the district. Lord Stanley strongly condemned the Angle-Portugese treaty, and repudish Portugese claims.

If we lead to extensive Government projects for railway extension are before the Parliament, a few facts in connection with the actual condition of the colony in its relation to the railway system may prove interesting and useful. It is pleasant to anticipate railway extensions, and experience has shown that it has often been easy to secure for them the sanction of Government. But whether these extensions may be for the advantage of the colony as a whole at the rates obarged, is open to doubt in view of the measure of support given to the already existing lines.

If we lead to a may be for the colony and the colony are the rail-port given to the already existing lines.

If we look at a map of the colony, note the railways, and then look at the population statistics as disclosed by the census of 1881, when the total number of inhabitants was 751,000, we get the following list of electorates with a population of 534,000, who are more or less adequately provided with railway communica-

joint population of 107,000, who are shortly to enjoy the benefits of railway communication by means of lines already sanctioned

There will then be left the following electorates, con-taining in 1881 a population of 110,000, which have Serry has made mysterions allusions regarding impending operations, the scene of which remains a profound scent. The Pall Mall Gasets thinks it will be Nankin, as an attempt on Canton would cost too much, which we have a secondart, and might affectibe neutral Powers. In the meantims the war party at Petha appear quite in the accountant, and prepared to resist the French demands. The commencial community in China is taking alarm at the prospect of an indefinite profongation of hostilities. An important meeting has been held at Shanghal to protest against the French operations, which are raining commerce, and to urge upon the Home Government to bring about a cessation of the same. Rumotirs of a pacific character are again current in Peris.

There are lengthy discussions in the press on the state of the Ritchian any, comparing the same unfavourably with the navies of other European Powers. Lord Lennox, in a recent speech, politated out the inferity of the English as compared with the French districts. Parts and the statement of the fourth of the fourth within easier means of communication with the metropolis.

Knospt in the Coast districts referred to, there is not a township of 1000 people, unless a mining township, that is not connected with, or within a reasonable distance of, a railway line, or the route of a line which has been sanotioned. Every considerable centre of population in the colony is already provided, by railway or steemship, with rapid means of communication with the outside world. The railways for the most part have followed the lines of settlement—the tracks which have usually been the means of communication. If we go west over the mountains, the railway and road are running parallel; south to Albury we are never far from the old coach road to Melbourns, and north to Armidale we are always near the main road; and it is singular that where we have kept with our railways to these old beaten lines of communication, with populous townships scattered here and there along the route, we have the lines which alone have been made to pay interest on the capital expenditure. Every route, we have the lines which alone have been made to pay interest on the capital expenditure. Every deviation from these natural old settled lines of communication has been carried at a loss. That is a point on which our legislators will do well to ponder while they are considering schemes some of which may be of extremely doubtful utility. In illustration of this, we have compiled the following table from the last report issued by the Commissioner for Rallways, which was the report for the year 1882; the sections of railway being ranged in their relative degree of profitableness.—

Sections,	Miles open,	Capital Ex- penditure.	Per cont. per annum return on Capital.

Erises whether the new lines sanctioned and projected will come within the category of those which pay no interest, those which pay less than the State has to pay our debenture-holders, or those which pay more. There seems to be little doubt of this fact, that unless we have the population we shall not a existing rates have the traffic to make the lines pay. It is clearly shown by these figures that it is the most populous districts which give the most productive traffic to the lines. Population practically represents the mesure of industry and line traffic. To Granville the people who use the railway pay double the cost; to Batharst and even to Nevertire the line pays much more than cost, as also does the southern line to Goulburn. And so also the Nortbern railway as far as Murrurundi pays very well. Beyond that it only pays 2778 per cent. per annum on capital. The North-western line, which traverses a rich country, comes not far short of the paying point; but all the other branch lines are very unprofitable. If this be so, it may be asked, what prespect is there of doubling the railway mileage of 1882 (and the lines sanctioned and projected will do more than that) with any bline in protable railway? Instead of having doubling the railway mileage of 1882 (and the lines sanotioned and projected will do more than that) with anything like a profitable return? Instead of having half our lines upproductive, will there not be a risk of getting two thirds or three-fourths of them in this position?

And if to these be added 1882 miles now projected, is there not an uncomfortable prospect of the future of the railway system?

The estimated cost of these projected lines is about £8100 per mile, or as nearly as possible the cost of the lines which do not pay. If indeed we exclude the light lines, the cost averages nearly £12,000. Never except in one or two cases has there been traffic on any of the newly projected lines such as to warrant their immediately yielding anything like an adequate return at existing railway charges for the annual interest on the capital expenditure. There is fair cround for assuming that the 759 miles of line the annual interest on the capital expenditure. There is fair ground for assuming that the 789 miles of line now being constructed, and the 1832 miles projected, if ever carried out, will have to be added to the 679 miles which in 1832 left a large loss to the Railway Department, constituting 2850 miles out of the total of 3157 miles of which the railway system will then consist. Even allowing that some of these lines may work into a profitable position, there is too much reason to fear that the unprofitable extensions will far outweigh them.

work into a profitable position, there is too much reason to fear that the unprofitable extensions will far outweigh them.

But whilst there is little or no prospect of the bulk of the new expenditure on railways being made reproductive under present conditions, there is very fair reason to believe that with adequate rates the least remunerative lines, might be neads to pay; and still further, that many new lines might be constructed with advantage. It would be well if, whilst the Parliament is sanctioning railways and voting the cost, it was at the same time securing some guarantee of net seraings that will cover, or nearly cover, from the outset the annual interest on the expenditure, so that it shall not be a burden on the rest of the community, by requiring payments from the public sevenus, or unduly increasing the cost of railway conveniences to the people of the old settled districts. If we reduced the railway fares and freights on the sections of the railway between Sydney and Hathurst, Sydney and Goulburn, and Newcastle and Murrurundi—and we might do this without suffering a loss on those parts of the lines—how do we know what agricultural and pastoral industry might not be foetered along the lines between these places which is not now possible because of the high railway fares? If the people on the railway from Sydney to Orange pay over 6 per cent, on the capital cost of the construction of the lines, have they not some right to grumble? Why should the traveller from Sydney to Parramatta have to pay a very much larger fare than is needed to return interest on the cost of construction on the line he travels by? And unless the Government is very careful in extending railway lines to secure rates that will pay, a very much larger fare than is a present borne by those who use the railways in the old settled districts will have to be fixed to provide for the deficiency which the railway socounts will show when these new lines shall be completed. At the same time, if it were made a condition for the granting pay at least something near the annual interest on the expenditure, there is no reason why railways should not be extended as largely as proposed. Railways, rightly constructed and worked, with rates considerably below the ordinary coach fare or bullock-dray tonnage charge, would pay in many places to which they have not yet been extended. But they cannot be made to pay if immediately they are constructed people are allowed to travel by them at one-structed people are allowed to travel by them at one-structed people are allowed to travel by them at one-structed people are allowed to travel by them at one-structed people are allowed to travel by them at one-structed people are allowed to travel by them at one-structed people of a slow and inconvenient stage coach. And that is precisely what they are being allowed to do on the new lines of route; and because even that rate is somewhat more than is paid by the people of Bydney and Parramatta, they meet and grumble and patition Government to be put on equal terms with their metropolitan rellow-colonists. Some guarantee of payment may fairly be exacted from people for whom the railways are coostructed. The Government requires a per cent on capital syncholiture can no less than 205 inlies of these railways. There was a loss of 0-03 per cent on the Blacktoon and Richmond railway, a loss of 0-13 per cent, on the Blacktoon and Richmond railway, a loss of 0-13 per cent, on the Blacktoon and Richmond railway, a loss of 0-13 per cent, on the Blacktoon and Richmond railway, a loss of 0-13 per cent, on the Blacktoon and Richmond railway, a loss of 0-13 per cent, on the Blacktoon and Richmond Inc. and the total expenditure on the surface of the series of the ser

BOROUGH COUNCILS.

At the ordinary fortnightly meeting of the Paramatta Borough Council held yesterday afternoon, writes our correspondent, another of these diagraceful access which have become so characteristic of that body of late took place. During a discussion which arose on a proposal to extend the lighting rate to certain streats, the council resembled a pandemonium, and it was some time before order could be restored. Eventually the motion was carried. The other business franascted was of an unimportant character.

The sanitary state of the various boiling-down establishments located in the Borough of Conterbury was brought under the notice of the local council at the meeting on Wednesday hast by the report of the inspector of misances, which urged the necessity of having the borough proclaimed under the Nuisance Trevention Act. Alderman Sharp moved a resolution in accordance with the recommendation, which was seconded by Alderman Williams, and carried on a division by four to two, the voting being as follows:—Ayes: The Mayor, Aldermen Wolliams, Sicosombe, and Sharp. Noss: Aldermen Roberts and Davis.

A yes: The Mayor, Aldermen Roberts and Davis,
A letter was received at the last meeting of the Canterbury Council from Mr. Wm. Bibby, secretary of the Person of the road leading from Unwin's Bridge, and in answer to the road leading from Unwin's Bridge, and in answer to the communication the writer was informed that until the Government bad placed the road under the control of the consult the work could not be carried out. On the same subject a letter was received from Mr. Campbell, intimating her willingness to give the land necessary to make the road straight and of a uniform width of 30 feet.

A current of the process of the Bridge and the testentian of the borough; and also requesting that a collector should be sent round to receive the rates in Croydon Park and Gostal, as, owing to the bad state of the road, and the difficulty of travelling on them at night, and that the ratespayers cannot leave their work in the day time they cannot get round to the council intimated that as the council do not employ a rata-collector, the ratespayers habe test in the portion of the common and of overwing their rates or otherwise the services of the balliff would be brought into requisition.

Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, held their second wool sale for the season this afternoon. The catalogue contained 2856 b-les, the bulk of it being inferior to madium quality in the crosse. Compatition catalogue contained 2856 beles, the bu'k of it being inferior to medium quality in the grease. Competition was rather better than at the previous sale, but still many holders were unwilling to accept the prices to which buyers competed with considerable animation. It is apparent that purchasers are prepared to do business at prices ranging from a halfpenny to one penny per lb. below those obtained last year, and leading salesmen as well as buyers think that is about market value, having regard to the reduction that has taken place in the home market. The cuction that has to see place in the nome marker. The competition for greesy pieces was very active, and the prices realised were equal to those obtained last year, Scoured pieces and locks also sold very well. One large lot of "D and Co. over Despwater" wool from Wagga was withdrawn, as owners reserves were not reached, and this also was the case with many other lines. and this also was the case with many other lines. TUISDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1884.

It would seem that there are still member who have their doubts as to the necessity for a city railway extension, and that members who once regarded this extension as one of great importance are now prepared to look upon it as an affair of little moment. About eight years ago a scheme for the taking of the railway into the city was proposed by the Government of Sir John Robertson, and a year or two afterwards a scheme proposed by the Government that was led by Sir HENRY PARKES. The former has not declared his opposition to the proposal that is before the House, but he has conveyed that he does not think the matter of the proposal to be at all an urgent one. In the most friendly way he suggested on Thursday last that it would be best this session to deal with such lines as were absolutely needful, and these he pointed out were the line from Tantarfield towards the Queensland border and Tenterfield towards the Queensland border and a line towards Wilcannia. Six years ago Sir HENRY l'ARKES spoke of the question of the taking of the railway into the heart of the city as one that did not admit of delay. a correspondent pointed out on Saturday, the late PREMIER committed himself to the employing of all the energy of the Works De-partment to carry this line into effect. "The eason of our decision to push this work with reason of our decision to push this work with every energy of which we are capable con-sists in this: The value of properties which must be disturbed by a work of that kind is such as to render the quickest way of dealing with the matter also the most economical. Having determined on the route, we shall leave no stone unturned, no effort untried, to have it completed in shortest possible time." This was said in December, 1878, and if the taking of the line into the heart of the city was urgent then it surely must be urgent now. Every year the of property increases and every year the traffic gets larger. In the House on Thursday last, however, the late PREMIER, although not opposing the city extension, used language which could have no other effect. "There were gentlemen in the liouse," he said, " who were not wedded to carrying the railway into the city, and whose minds were prepared to consider impartially the significance of the expenditure of £450,000 on a mile and a quarter of railway. They knew well enough that that sum would construct very many miles of railway in many parts of the country according to the usual estimates of railway construcreasons for this expenditure." In the opinion of the late PREMIER, although the necessity for taking the line into the heart of the city was clear six years ago, it has to be made clear That there are members who share this view may be inferred from the fact that the language we have quoted was cheered in the House, and from remarks that were made at a later period of the evening. The member for the liunter remarked that "he had been twitted in the past about his opposition to the city extension, because he had beld out for the fullest possible information respecting it, but he was not opposed to its being properly carried out, he only considered the service of the outlying districts of the colony of far more importance." Sentiments like this have often they have never shut out English goods to been uttered in the Assembly, and they will the extent that the Americans have d probably be heard again. The bringing line into the city, it is contended, is a busine into the city, it is contended, is a business of very little importance; the important tories, while those who have gone to be matter is the carrying of the lines into the interior. Some of the members who talk in this fashion protest that they bear no ill-will to the city, and that they do not object to a city line in the abstract. But though they do not object to the line in the abstract, they always object to it in the concrete. Under circumstances that do not exist they would be prepared to vote for the construction of a city line, but they always find grounds for opposing it under circumstances that do exist. The theory is, if not that the money spent on such a line would be the American market is, what will it matter so much taken from country lines, that the to the English artisan who stays at home construction of the latter is of far more mportance than that of the former. How this can be is not explained. More than one quarter of the population of the colony is to be found in the city and suburbs of Sydney. The number of the persons who travel within the metropolis is very much larger than the number of those who travel beyond it. Some GENUINE of the coefliest of the lines into the interior have been constructed for of a comparatively small number of people. For thirty years and more we have be structing lines in the country, but during the

and there are members of Parliament whe still fail to see why it should have one. It will be said that, if Melbourne has its railways, Sydney has its tramways. But Melbourne is to have its tramways as well as its railways, and while, for the city and its immediate surroundings at least, the tramways of Sydney have been a very great convenience, they were never intended to be a substitute for railways, and cannot be made to answer that purpo The object of a metropolitan railway is to relieve the streets; but in more than one of our contres the effect of the transactions is to make the streets well-night impassable and unendurable. Nobely on say that the state of things in Elizabeth-street ought to be allowed to con-tinue. Perhaps there is not another part of the world in which the running of a steam motors through narrow streets would be tolerated. But even if the present tramway system is continued, it will not meet the wants of the city. It does not meet its wants at the present moment. Day after day the people in the suburbs are crying out for means of transit which they cannot get, and which the Government cannot supply. A short time ago, on the ground that the business at the tramway terminus was becoming unmanageable, the Minister FOR WORKS propounded a scheme for the taking of the Eastern trams through College-street and around by Elizabeth-street. Every year the metropolis is growing larger, but in the heart of the city the present tramway system ought not to be allowed to grow larger. If Parliament does not supply railways, it must supply something else. It should not be forgotten that the Government has exercised its prerogative for the purpose of securing the monopoly of the traffic of the city. It has undertaken to supply the wants of the metropolis, and it will have to supply them or confess that it is unable to do so, and hand over its responsibility to somebody else. The route proposed by the present Government may be a good or a bad one. The principal thing to be said in its favour is that it is a cheap route. But by this or by some other Government something will have to be done to provide for the wants of the city. We certainly ought not to go on increasing the tram traffic between the railway station and Bridge-street, and it is hardly creditable to us that so large a traffic has been so long trusted to such insufficient appliances.

Being at Aberdeen for the purpose of recieving the freedom of the city, Lord Ross-BERY took the opportunity of addressing the Trades Union Congress, which was being held at the time in that city, and sought to intercet its members in the question of the colonial empire, and in its political federation with the mother country. It was not altogether as easy task, because English trades unious are pre-eminently practical bodies. grown to greatness, but they have grown from little beginnings, and grown by feeling their way steadily from solid ground to solid ground, and therefore they are hardly likely to take any definite step on a question which the Earl of ROSEBERY himself admits is not immediately one of practical politics, but which is rather a matter to be kept in view than to be legislated on, or even to be dogmatised over. Moreover, the trades unions have a special object, and that is the benefit of their own members, and as a rule they do not pass resolutions on anything uless the interest of their own members i involved. To get them to move as respects Imperial federation, therefore, it would be necessary to satisfy them that the proposed policy would bring some material improve ment to the English working classes.

Lord ROSEBERY felt and admitted this, but he stated that though the country was being sgitated from end to end by the franchise question, the colonial question was really the more important of the two because the former could take care of itself, while the latter could not. This argument, however, would only prove that it more needed looking after, not that it was necessarily of more intrinsic importance.

In trying to interest them, he pointed out that the emigrants who went to the British colonies remained fellow-countrymen, while those who went abroad severed their national connection, and that that fact made it a working man's question. But in what way is the artisan who stays at home interested in where the emigrant goes to, unless he is going to send position to back orders for goods, and so make work for had beld those whom he has left behind? As a matter tectionist proclivities of some of the workmen who have gone to America have not done much for the English manufacthough this has been the case in the past, there is no absolute guarantee that it will continue to be the case in the future. Federated Australia may become just as protection-ist as the United States, and if our protectionist friends can have their own way it will become so, for they are never weary of holding up the financial policy of the States as a model to be imitated. If that should be the case, and if the colonial market should become as closed to English goods at where the comrade who has worked by his side emigrates to? Will there be anything more than the mere national sentiment involved ? Trying to find some solid ground, Lord ROSEBERY takes the point that the emigrants nearly all belong, not to the upper class, not even to the middle classes, but to the working class; and he therefore argues that the trades unions have a class interest in these men. They have a class interest in their welfare undoubtedly, but have they the same kind of interest in their In the solidarity of labour they are inter-much to gain from the closer connection with the colonies as the working classes, and for this reason, that the working classes in Australia and in Canada have got much more power, and have made much greater advances ny ways, than the working classes in the mother country have been able to do; and he pointed out that they had secured in colonies short hours, high pay, and Parliamentary representation. But are they dif-ferent in this respect in the colonies from what they are in the United States? and if so, is the difference due to anything specifically

Passing a sontence upon young Carrer at Yazz last week was a painful duty to the Judge; but the case itself is more painful still to the community. Certain sections of commercial life denand character as one of the first qualifications of men who engage in them. In trade, trust is almost as indispensable as currency. It is an understood thing that young men who offer themselves for positions of responsibility in financial affairs have thoroughly correct principles and moral force have thoroughly correct principles and moral force to carry them out. Young CARTER was said to be a man of this sort, and therefore was trusted by his superiors. His counsel did him no service if he laid any part of the blame upon them. The Jupone said: "Your counsel has argued that you were a young man for the responsibility which was imposed upon you, and that in doing your work the officers over you were too lax in their supervision." There would be some force in this if CARTER's position had been one which naturally and necessarily offered temptations to wrongdoing. But it did not. Whilst offices like his demand trustworthiness, they certainly cannot be said to provoke have thoroughly correct principles and moral force worthiness, they certainly cannot be said to provoke dishonesty. If the trial had not been shortened dishonesty. If the trial had not been shortened by the plea of guilty, evidence might have been adduced to show that the snares into which CARTER fell were quite outside his office. His duty never called him to know anything about such affairs as led him to ruin. Neither his home life nor any legitimate pleasure for a moment created any pressure upon his honour. His case may be used to show that home and office life, with reasonable recreation, are all well within the limits of a rigorous sintegrity. Apparently he took to gambling, and then fell into the mistake of supposing that it was better to rob a consuppor ng that it was better to rob a conto say frankly that he could not meet his "debts of honour." Too often cases of this sort utterly fail to warn young men, for under a feeling of sympathy for the victim it is possible entirely to overlook the outrage which has been done to society. The offence against employers may be made up in part by a payment in money, but even a life of imprisonment may not repair the breach that has been made in commercial morality. Without a word of apology for the temptation referred to be his not repair the breach that has been made in com-percial morality. Without a word of apology for the temptation referred to by his Honor, it may be said that if human nature is strong only when it is not tempted, not much can be said for its strength. Banks and some other institutions want n who are strong enough to live in the world as

Sydney, in many parts, is being rebuilt. Of course the new erections are vastly superior in every way to those which are being displaced; but it cannot be said that there is more harmony of design in the new than there was in the old buildings. The contrast in some cases is notorious, and really painting that he is a superior to the contrast of the these contrasts are so much the result of accident as of design. Vossibly each architect, and each proprietor also, desires to distinguish his work. If this is meant, success could hardly be more complete. The city will, on present lines, eventually have a character for individuality; and we shall be called a people with marked idiosyneracies, if not of originality. Messrs. Horrnune could not be expected to adapt their designs to those of the architect for the Post Office. Those carvings are unapproachable, and their presence helps to divert attention from the marked contrast between the two buildings. But there are some other places where the contrast is fully as great, and where harmony of treatment would have been consistent with considerable variety of design. The two new buildings at the ful to look at ; and it is not easy to believe that where the contrast is fully as great, and where harmony of treatment would have been consistent with considerable variety of design. The two new buildings at the corners of Pitt and King streets are sufficiently design. The two new buildings at the corners of Pitt and King streets are sufficiently unlike each other; but there are points of resemblance which tell powerfully in favour of the suggestion now made. On the upper side of the new Assurance Offices referred to is a building of another type; and while the distinguishing characteristics of these buildings are in strong contrast, the effect is not a happy one. Nobody will be bold enough to suggest that the Government or the Corporation should "Haussananise" Sydney as Napoleon III. did Paris. The work may be voluntary. There is in Sydney an association of architects. It is not a demonstrative body, and very few persons know what is being done by it. But the better type of warehouses being built must be due in part to its members, as well as to a greater commerce in the city and a larger enterprise on the part of merchants. Nor is it likely that the subject we have named has escaped them; but it should be possible for them to help still further. If they consulted upon it, and advised their clients, it should be possible to erect buildings on lines that would make them complete in themselves, and yet they might have points well in harmony with the best of their neighbours.

was to allow colonial empire to drift away. That was a question, he said, for statesman and politicians, and, therefore, necessarily a question for the people. A question for the people as politicians undoubtedly, but is it definitely a question for the trades unions, unless it can be shown to affect wages, or the unless it can be shown to affect wages, or the whole on the Civil Service Bill No. 2, who have the setting the complaint, that this tree is in the letter stating the complaint, that this tree is for expending the constant of the letter stating the complaint, that this tree is the letter of constructing at Constant of the letter stating the complaint, that this tree is for expending to definitely a question where the leaves are strength of the federal principles which inpand by the House being counted out on the 15th instant, be now resumed." General Resiness.—Notice of Motion: Mr. Alexander Campbell to move—"That there be laid upon the table of this House copies of all patitions, letters, minutes, and all other papers having reference to the construction of a railway between Bowral and Robertson." Orders of the Day: Carriages Regulation Bill, third reading: Mittagong Coal-mining Company's Railway Bill, consideration in committee of Legislative Assembly's amendments.

THERE are 14 questions on the business paper of the Legislative Assembly for to-day, and following these the first Government order of the day is the resumption of the debate in committee of supply on resumption of the debate in committee of supply on the Government railway proposals. It was understood on Friday morning, just before the House adjourned, that the discussion would on Taesday proceed upon the merits of the different railway proposals, and probably this will be the case; but should snything in the way of obstructive tactics be displayed by any members on the Opposition side of the House, it is not unlikely that there will be snother long sitting. The Hon. Alexander Stuart continues to improve is the difference due to anything specifically colonial? and if colonial, are the causes political or commercial?

Lord Roseebry unquestionably interested his audience, and a vote of thanks was passed to him for his address. He was evidently interested, and wound up by asserting that the continuance of the British Empire was a matter of great interest to the friends of freedom throughout the world; that the bonds which bind this empire together must either become stronger or weaker; that the matter is one deserving of the most serious consideration, and that if it is of political interest it must affect seriously the masses of the people; but that nothing can or will be done by them unless by constant meditation and discussion the question soaks into the minds of the great mass of the people.

This announcement was received with applause. It was also stated that the deputation which waited on the Hon, the Minister of Justice was courteously received by Mr. Cohen, and that that gentlemen, after patiently listening to the several suggestions made by the various speakers, promised to enquire into the numerous subjects brought before his notice. Incidentally it was mentioned that a moneter petition in favour of local subjects brought before his notice. Ar the meeting of the British Association at Montreal, Sir F. Hincks, who had been invited to address the economic section, made the only political speech delivered at the mesting. It was one against federation. He declared that he found in the Canadian Parliament no advocacy either of federation, or of absorption into the Union, or of commercial union with the United States. He believed that the Domition was content with its "practical independence," and wished that things should, for the present, be let alone. The absence (eays the Spectator) of projects for federation in a colonial Parliament is no evidence. Many a State has been on the verge of a Republican movement without any Deputy openly professing Republicanism; but at the same time the speech is eignificant of one greet difficulty in the way of federation. The colonies fear that if the bond with the mother country were drawn tighter, they would lose as well as gain, and they want to gain only. They like their nearly perfect independence, which, under any secesivable scheme of Ar the meeting of the British Association at Montreal, Advantures by rail are as exciting (says the Fall Mall Gaertie), as adventures at sea; but as all who cross the cosan must share the risks of sterm and tempest, with the sailors the latter are much more generally appreciated than the perils which the engine-driver and his firemen have to face which the engins-driver and his firemen have to face alone. But what a suggestion it is that directors should qualify for their posts by doing journeys on the foot-plats! If we accept that principle we shall soon be compelling the Home Secretary to pass a night on a smal boat, or the Secretary for War to camp out with Tommy Atkins on the road to Khartoum, hardly ripe for that—at least not yet.

In reference to the intention of Germany to set colonists to the New Hebrides, and to the arrival of vessel from Samos with emigrants who are to satisfie in those islands, L'Independant says:—"We draw the attention of the local authorities to what may become attention of the local authorities to what may become a serious matter. The presence of a new colonising element, and above all of a German one, in the New Hebrides, may some day be a source of troublesome complications in connection with our projects of ansaration. Sufficient proof is in the attitude which the German Government takes with regard to the Angra Pequena territory, on the western coast of Africa. Under these circumstances it appears to us that is in the duty of the Chlesions Comment to come that it is the duty of the Caledonian Company to com Hebrides, by engaging the emigrants to work on the companies farms. This movement, then, far from being prejudicial, could only turn to cur profit. If, on being prejaminate, could only that to ear posts. INSPECTOR OF CHARITIES' REPORT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD. TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your article in to-day's issue quotes the opinion of the Inspector of Charities that "the practice of paying rent-money and of bestowing weekly doles to women and children, 'serves, not only to perpetuale, but to spread, pauparism by assisting persons to live in squasior, and rear gritter children of a low type." If there is any proof that the benevolence of this society has been improperly dispensed, the fault lies in the maindministration of, and not in, the system. Allow me to call attention to one side of the question. Rent allowances and outdoor relief rankle many a descried wife and widow to keep her children "about her," who would otherwise become "children of the State." It appears to me that the benevolence which relieves parents of the care of their own children is more hurful than that which, by beeping a rood over their heads, eastless mothers to fred and gloche them. I am, &c... MARY R. WINDRYRE. LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

[BY THLEGRAPH.] FLEMINGTON TRAINING NOTES. MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

There were very few persons at Flemington this morning, and the work done was not interesting. Fryingpan, Versy, ord Wilton, Hastings, and most of the others that need at Caulfield on Saturday were restricted to antering. Martini-Henry was not out, and it is bought that he is lame. Bargo and Tremando antered, and ran a fast half-mile. Bargo is very well, but freamndo dragged his off hind leg in a suspicious manner, ad unless eased in his work will probably go wrong. Tempe, clarable Monte Christo, and Denzot were sent to allow work. and unless eased it his work will probably go wrong. Tempe, lolantha, Monte Christo, and Despot were sent to slow work, but I did not see Uralia. Favo, who looks well, did medierate work on the sand track. Plausible with nicely on the fun. Burrilds cantered and spurted; and after a long canter Warwick spun along for half a mile. Lamond sent Phaon, Burfurd, Magnifier, Toward, and Tremalous to useful exercise, and I like the two last named best. Le Grand was treated to a good working gallop. Bir Modred performed an easy task, and Guesework, who is in great form for the time, awasted and finished up surgive. Hurronne, The in easy task, and Guesework, who is in great form for the time, sweated and finished up smartly. Hurricane, The Broker, Leporello, Vasco, The Pencil, Bir Garnet, Bignor, and a lot of others did slow work. Anchorite is doing well at Queenscliff, and at Caulfield the most solid work is being done by Umbra, Mistako, Mozart, The Ghoet, Melodious, Coriolanus, Norfolk, Outsario, and Violet. A great deal of strong work is sure to be done at Fleenington to morrow.

It is thought that Martini-Henry, who has been ceratched for all his V. R. C. engagements, will never be able to race again. Friese on the Melbourne Cup remain much as previously quoted. Melodous and the South Astralian cold Newstead have been backed for the Maribyrnoug Plate, for which the following are the latest prices:—100 to 15 such v. Uralia and Melodious, 100 to 10 v. Cairo and Newstead, 100 to 8 to 100 to 4 v. any other. Barge is at 6 to 4, taken and offered, for the Derby, and nothing else has been backed, though 10 to 1 is offered bar one. MELBOURNE, MONBAY.

though 10 to 1 is offered bar one.

After the race for the Nursery Handicap on Saturday,
Mr. J. Harper sold the mare Violet to Mr. R. G. Talbot

CRICKET.

The Oriental and Conservative Clubs contested together on the former club's ground last Saturday afternoon, the result, after a spirited game, being a win for the former by three wickets and six runs. The Conservatives were the first to coupy the creases, and were not disposed of until they had put together the respectable total of 109 runs, Vic. Adams with 35, W. Alderson with 25, and Mitchell 12, showing good cricket for their runs. The Orientals had an hour to get the required number of runs to win, which they accomplished with the last of seven wickets. Luland batted well for 47, and Fraser totted up 41 in rare form. Laisend, Ironaide, and Kidman shared the bowling honours for the winners, whilst Hewitt trunded in best form for the defeated team. The Orientals play the Osbornes a two-days' match on the 25th and the following Saturday.

AMUSEMENTS.

Whoever undertakes to entertain single-handed a given company of people for several hours tog-ther attempts what is generally acknowledged to be one of the hardest of tasks; but as it is the foblice of others which form the chief amusement of our lives, so when an impersentior claims our attention for a couple of hours at a stretch, and succeeds even if only moderately in secontuating the extravagancles of the typical characters he endeavours to pourtray, he becomes amusing, and we are ready to laugh at his sees. It was a task of this sort that Mr. Fleming Norton, a gentleman who comes amongst us with excellent London credentials, undertook for the first time here last night at the Acadomy of Music, whither the announcement of his appearance attracted a good attendance. Under the title of "Pienic Portraits" Mr. Norton supplies a musical and numeric entertainment of a very varied nature, the

The recipients of the prices were loudly applauded The president's trophy, a handsome silver wase, to be reved for at a future regard, and other prices were exhibited on the table. The concert on Friday night promises to be a great success. Many of the rowing members of the club are in active training for approaching events.

LECTURES.

On Saturday Mr. M. J. M'Laughlin delivered a lecture on Bred Lierte to a large audience at the Shool of Arts. Bred Harte to a large audience at the Shool of Arts. Bred Harte is not no generally known as his fellow humourists of America, Mark Twels and Artema Ward, but the lecture brought him prominently forward, and caused his audience to appreciate the pathon, deep and tender, the dry, quanth humour and earlier which form the peculiar features of Bret Harte's Rembrand-like abstebates of missing life. Mr. M'Laughlin was deceavedly applauded for his master, "recitation of elections from The Lack of Roaring Compy." The Heather Chines, "The Lack of Roaring Compy." There is something extraordinary in the present position of the life insurance companies of Great Britain. According to the Board of Trade returns their assets at the present moment amount to no less than 185,000,000 of money. They take nearly £15,000,000 in premiums—that is about 10s. a head for every member of the population. They have paid nearly £11,000,000 in claims. The mere commission on their ordinary business is £570,000. The expenses of management amount to more than £1,000,000. And the business is annually increasing, so that presently the income will be that of a second-rate Power.

DIRECTIONS for OBTAINING a LOAN, Submit your Plan and Specification together with your application for Loan. Immediately your application is granted you can proceed to build, and the Company will advance up to 73 ner exet, of the work done as the building proceeds—this is the usual prastice, as your builder will tell you—and when the building is finished, the Company will pay over the balance of the 50 per cent; you will then have to find the 10 per cent, balance.
Your repayments on account of the loan do not commence until after the building is finished, ard the interest is charged only upon the amounts as they are advanced.
Should you, from any autre, with to pay off the whole or any portion of the loan, you can do so at any time with interest to date only.

There is no necessity for the land to be entirely paid for before petting a loan to build.

Immediately the deposit is paid the company will advance to

REDM TRE-ROAD.
 The property consists of 80 acres freebold land, on which a shaft has been sunk 317 feet perpendicular, well timbered and centred, with shids for working cages, and opened-out levels every 80 feet from the surface.

There have been several hundred tons of ore takes from the mine, all of which has averaged over 60 per cent, of sulphide. This property is placed on the market through the failure of the tributors to carry out the serms of their lease, and is consequence of the basis of the Neartist Antimony Mining Company not permitting the calling up of fresh capital.

Any information with respect to title or other particulars can be had on application to Mr. Honry Walker, solicitor, Maryborough, or the austimeers, prior to the sale.
